

The Emotions of Investing

Investing can feel a lot like a weekend of partying. This chart shows some of the emotions investors will encounter as markets go through cycles. These cycles can occur no matter what asset class you may be invested in. Risk is highest when things feel the best and lowest when there is a lot of fear, panic and depression. It is essential to understand this and follow a strategy rather than emotion.

